To Whom It May Concern,

I recently bought a Cherokee 180 through Bartelt Aviation, Inc. They were the broker for the seller. This is the first airplane that I have ever purchased.

Bartelt Aviation was very helpful through the entire process. I found them to be professional and courteous. The information regarding the airplane was accurate and all features that were listed were operational. They coordinated all communication between the seller and myself.

In particular, the staff at Bartelt Aviation helped me understanding the closing process, making sure that all details were taken care of at the right time. This can be complicated due to the coordination required between all parties (banks, insurance, etc). This was much appreciated and I don't think I would have been able to complete the process correctly without their assistance.

I would strongly recommend Bartelt Aviation to anyone who is thinking of selling or buying an airplane. The process can be quite complicated and an experienced and professional broker like Bartelt Aviation can make a significant difference.
